Rosa's Law Signed by President Obama on Tuesday, October 5th, 2010

Soon many Federal statutes will no longer refer to "mental retardation" or someone as being "mentally retarded", but will instead refer to a person as having an "intellectual disability" or as being "intellectually disabled". Advocates are hailing this new law, named after 9-year old Rosa Marcellino, as one step forward in the right direction at improving the way individuals with disabilities are talked about. "Rosa's Law" was originally introduced by Senator Barbara Mikulski (D-MD) on November 7th, 2009 and cleared Congress for signing by the President on September 22nd, 2009.

Alabama APSE sponsored Employment First training November 3 - 5, 2010 in Tuscaloosa. Twenty five individuals from various supported employment agencies, school systems, state agencies and other organizations successfully completed the training. Two consultants from Virginia Commonwealth University's Rehabilitation Research and Training Center on Workplace Supports conducted the training. Valerie Brooke holds a Master of Education Degree from Virginia Commonwealth University and has provided technical assistance training and consulting throughout the United States. She is currently serving as Project Director for a national business-to-business marketing initiative funded by the National Institute on Disabilities Rehabilitation Research. Howard Green was (continued on page 2)

Did you Know

- People with disabilities constitute the nation's largest minority group, and the only group any of us can become a member of at any time.
- Between 1990 and 2000, the number of Americans with disabilities increased 25 percent, outpacing any other subgroup of the U.S. population.
- People with disabilities represent the single largest minority group seeking employment in today's marketplace.
- Over 65 percent of working-age adults with disabilities are unemployed. Of these working adults, nearly one third earn an income below the poverty level.
- According to the U.S. Department of Education, workers with disabilities are rated consistently as average or above average in performance, quality and quantity of work, flexibility, and attendance.

Alabama APSE gladly accepts donations to offset costs of regional and statewide training events. Further, donations are utilized for consumer involvement. (continued) a member of the VCU faculty for more than 15 years before his recent retirement to accept a position with the National Organization on Disability. Prior to coming to VCU, he worked 18 years for the Virginia Department of Rehabilitative Services. Howard has always been interested in creating business partnerships which bring about a greater opportunity for people with disabilities to gain employment. He has years of expertise in providing training and education on marketing efforts to both rehabilitation and business leaders.

The packed agenda for this 3 day event included classroom instruction and field exercises. Attendees had the opportunity to listen to personal stories from consumer consultants who have been successful at obtaining employment through supported employment services. In addition, an employer panel spoke to the group and provided insight from an employers perspective in regards to hiring practices.

The 3 day training was made possible through grant funding from the Alabama Department of Rehabilitation Services utilizing stimulus funds. The overall mission of this training is increased employment outcomes for people with significant disabilities. AL-APSE hopes to obtain future funding in order to continue this worthwhile training.

2011 AL-APSE & ACDD Featured Speaker

Sheri Melander-Smith will provide the opening keynote at the 2011 AL-APSE & ACDD conference. Sheri is a highly sought-after inspirational and motivational speaker. In her presentation, she describes how she went from being a disabled child, to an international fashion model and soap opera actress.

Sheri shares her story in a down-to-earth, authentic and heartwarming style. Sheri's incredible life journey mesmerizes audience members with its ups and downs, twists and turns. Her story begins shortly after she was born when her parents noticed that one of her legs was growing longer than the other. When Sheri was 6 she had an operation that stunted the growth in her longer leg and soon her legs grew even in length. When Sheri was 17 she had a cosmetic procedure to further enhance the appearance of her legs. It wasn't until Sheri was in her 30's that a diagnosis of Klippel-Trenaunay-Weber was made.

Sheri's developed an interest in show business in her early teens. At the age of 14 she won a full scholarship to attend the Children's Theatre of Minneapolis. Self determined, she mailed her school pictures to a local agent and was soon sent on auditions. Her first audition was for a television commercial that she landed.

Shortly after her 18th birthday Sheri entered and won the Eileen Ford New York "Face of the 80's" competition (Midwest region), the predecessor for "Supermodel of the World" contest. Her roommate at the Ford's personal home was Christy Turlington. Modeling in New York catapulted Sheri into the world of high fashion modeling. As her career progressed she had the opportunity to travel and work all around the world. In addition to modeling, Sheri continued to pursue her acting career and appeared in many television commercials, small parts in movies, along with a stint on the soap opera "The Bold and the Beautiful". All of Sheri's childhood dreams had come true, including falling in love with a real European Prince.

However, in December 1990 her life took a cruel turn when she had to be rushed to the emergency room for a spinal cord aneurysm(AVM). Doctors told her she might never walk again. After nine grueling months of therapy, Sheri returned to Los Angeles, to attend UCLA to receive a degree in psychology. Sheri never returned to modeling or her famous European Prince.

After completing her college studies, Sheri got married, moved back to Minnesota and had a beautiful baby boy whom she named Oliver. Sheri returned to school and obtained her MBA in 2004. She felt her life had reached the pinnacle of success with her new career as a Professional Planning Analyst in a governmental role and raising her son Oliver. Everything seemed to be back on track.

Unfortunately for Sheri her AVM returned in 2005. This time Sheri wasn't okay. When she awoke from the surgery in October of 2005, she could not move or feel either of her legs due to paraplegic. Because of the location of the AVM pain emulated from the nerve roots that left Sheri bed bound for an entire year. Curled up in the fetal position, Sheri contemplated life and decided that she was going to live the best life possible regardless of her disability. Sheri is a living example of possibility thinking mixed with the right attitude of "Never Give Up". Don't miss Sheri's inspiring keynote on July 27, 2011.

Sheri's Philosophy

Life is a gift. Regardless of whether we win or lose, we can always choose to be happy, to create a better life for ourselves □ moment by moment.

Joy comes from the heart and is not based on circumstances but on choice. What do you choose?

Embrace your given life.
